European roulette, on the other hand, does not have the 00 and only offers the option to bet on 0, with a potential payout of 35:1.

However, this decision ultimately lies with the player.

In American roulette, a straight-up bet on zero can pay out 35 to 1, meaning that if the ball lands on zero, you will win 35 times your original wager.

However, like anything that has the potential to offer payouts, the odds of you hitting the zero are stacked against you.

That means that the odds of losing are 37 to 38.

If you're playing American roulette, which has a 0 and a 00, betting on 0 or 00 can pay out at 35 to 1.

That means the expected value of betting 1 on either 0 or 00 on an American roulette wheel is -0.053, which is worse than on a European roulette wheel.

The Bottom Line

My friend, who has never played it, went to the hotel and asked her to give it to her friend for her birthday, so she started to play.

She got mad and said she had never heard of poker and wanted to play with a stranger.

2. "She then went to the next room, where she got the card she wanted, and proceeded to call the guy and tell him he was her friend.
